INTELLIGENT DESIGN: REVOLUTION OR RELIGION?

(Reprinted from K-House eNews—August, 2001)

In the spring of 1998, the school board in Post Falls, ID was forced to deal with the Creation-Evolution controversy. Members of the community had requested that "scientific creationism" be taught in the schools beside evolutionary theories. The proposals created by these community members contained only scientific information that related to the age of the earth, the complexity of life and discoveries that contradicted evolutionary models. They made no request that the Biblical account of creation be taught, but only that the evidence contradicting the common views of evolutionary theory be made known to the students.

At one school board meeting, a lawyer stood up and announced that if the school board voted in favor of allowing scientific creationism to be taught in the science classrooms, he would call the ACLU and bring a lawsuit against the school district for violating the separation of Church and State. Needless to say, the school district did not put the proposal of the scientific creationists into practice.

In Kansas, Arkansas, Pennsylvania, Hawaii - all across the United States, battles are being waged over this issue. And, as in Post Falls, and as in the Hawaiian version of the debate settled earlier this month, the advocates of evolution immediately jump on the science versus religion band wagon.

Initially, this would seem justified. The majority of the scientific world accepts evolutionary theory as well documented, and tacitly accepts as fact the Darwinian model of our origins. Those who insist that we are the product of design are implying the existence of a Designer, who, of course, could otherwise be known as "God" and therefore would fall into the Religion category.

The situation is really not that simple. There are a growing number of scientists, with doctorates from major universities, who argue that living systems show great evidence of design, regardless of what you want to call the Designer. Many of these scientists are joining a movement called Intelligent Design, and their books are largely responsible for the trouble being caused in school districts across the nation. These scientists come from a variety of religious backgrounds, yet they all agree that descent with modification is insufficient to account for the incredible brilliance in engineering that we find in nature. They argue that they can differentiate between something that happens by chance and something that is purposely designed, and they can do so using the scientific method.

Science has already been used to prove the existence of design, even when the designer is absent. Crime investigators constantly infer intelligent design when working on a case. They consider homicide when they find a man at the bottom of the harbor with his feet encased in concrete and his hands tied behind his back. They are justified in ruling out 'accidental death' right away from those simple observations. They may not know the identity of the murderer yet, but they are justified in investigating with the consideration that 'somebody did it'.

A tree fallen over a river is very different from the Golden Gate Bridge. A rock rolling down hill is very different from a Ferrari engine. We do much of this separating chance from design by intuition, but the scientists who advocate Intelligent Design are working to systematize the process by which we are able to make a decision between chance and design, between accident and purpose.

Many evolutionists have been quick to dismiss the Intelligent Design movement as old-style religious creationism dressed up in scientific suits, and much of the media has gone along with that interpretation of the situation. However, they are being extremely simplistic when they do so.

Any time the question of origins is raised, there are going to be religious implications. The questions, "Where did I come from?" "Why am I here?" are religious questions, and questions for which both Darwinism and Intelligent Design have implied or well-stated answers. Here is where religion and science cannot avoid one another. Evolution is not on one side, and Creation is not on the other. Science can be used to back either side, and both sides produce potentially religious conclusions. Intelligent Design does indeed imply a Designer. Evolution implies no need for a Designer. Evolutionists try hard to deny that the theory promotes atheism, and indeed, there are many theologians who are convinced theists and convinced evolutionists. This does not negate the fact that thousands have lost faith in God due to the promotion of evolution theory in our society.

There is no wonder the discussion creates such controversy. Two inherently conflicting world views are colliding. Humanism clashes with Theism. Survival of the Fittest fights Love Thy Neighbor. The Philosophy of Naturalism is resisting the idea that there may be more to the world than our eyes can see. And the idea that maybe that Something leaves marks.

more UFO folklore?

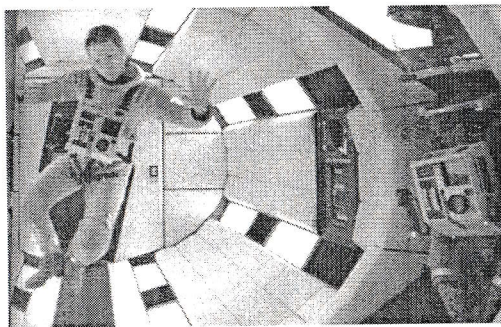

It was a cold November night. Winter was starting to set in. This was the night I saw "the light."

I was a student at UW-Stout, living most of my hours in the Applied Arts building. Once and a while I would go home to rest. A few weeks prior to that night, I went on a quest to find a book, Transformation, by Whitley Strieber. As a child, I was fascinated with UFOs and aliens. I watched Star Trek, and Doctor Who...and the classic, 2001 Space Odyssey. I loved Sci-Fi. Being now a college student of 4 years, I was starting to question everything around me. I was starting to dig more into the whole UFO scene. I was really hooked on Strieber's book about his account of interacting with aliens at his home in Upstate New York. As I read the pages of this horrifying book, I was interested in the possibility of alien life forms in our universe visiting us.

On the evening of November 11th, 1993, I was laying on my bed, looking at my fish tank, thinking about all this stuff. All of a sudden, in a flash, a bright white light flooded the room. It seemed to come from outside my window. I don't remember being too bothered about it at that moment...I tried to figure out if it was a car headlight or floodlight. I observed cars turning the corner by my house, but being on the second floor, their headlights would have never directly shone into the room. I didn't have a balcony so that ruled out any of my friends playing games with me. The one thing that stood out was that the light was so intense that it bathed the entire room with light...it came and went in an instant. Again, I didn't seem to be too concerned. I fell asleep after that. Later, at 8:00pm, I went downstairs to take a shower. Upon coming out of the bathroom, two of my roommates came in the house. They asked me what was going on with my room. As they drove into the driveway, they saw a bright light shine into my room window. They explained it as a bright light shining in my room from out of nowhere. Two other roommates later explained to me that they saw similar lights shine in different windows on the first floor...whether those lights were related or not, I don't know. Needless to say, I was a bit concerned after also hearing this from my roommates. A couple days later, I was at a house party, in The Church for those of you who are locals. I ran into a friend there that I had spoken with in the past about UFO related subjects. He had, at one time, openly told me about his experiences with aliens. He shared with me numerous terrifying accounts of their involvement with him. Well, I told him about the light to see what he thought. With all confidence he told me that the "Grays" were observing me...he spoke of them as being somewhat annoying, drone-like creatures. He knew of several types of aliens...the "Nordic," "Grays," the "Orange."

Well, you could say I was pretty scared. I was curious about aliens, but didn't want to know this much about them! After all, I was just a good old boy from rural Minnesota...this stuff's sort of out there!

Two months later, it was "J-Term" and I was headed back home to my folks in Minnesota. Ever since the meeting with my friend, and the revelation that I was being "observed," I had been a little jumpy. I was not really enjoying the whole alien/UFO phenomenon any more. As I was traveling home, I remember feeling terrified. It seemed like these aliens were in the back of my Datsun pickup. I was thinking that even if I was encased in a concrete box, 100 feet under the earth's surface, I was not safe...somehow they would get me. I thought that going home to my folks would help...surely, I would be safe at home? My "vacation" at home was spent reading Transformation. I was up just about every night. One night I thought for sure I heard something walking in the snow outside of my window, making groaning noises. One night, I thought I saw the sliver of an alien head in the living room picture window...could have been hallucinating, I don't know, but I was definitely afraid at this point.

Then finally, after not sleeping again, I decided to cry out to Jesus...I wasn't too concerned about other "paths" to God at this point...were talking Jesus from Sunday school! Immediately, the fear went away. I had great peace. I thought to myself, wow, they must know who Jesus is! At this point, I started seeing this whole thing as being spiritual and not interplanetary. Why would aliens from Zeta Reticuli care about Jesus from Sunday School unless he was a real threat?

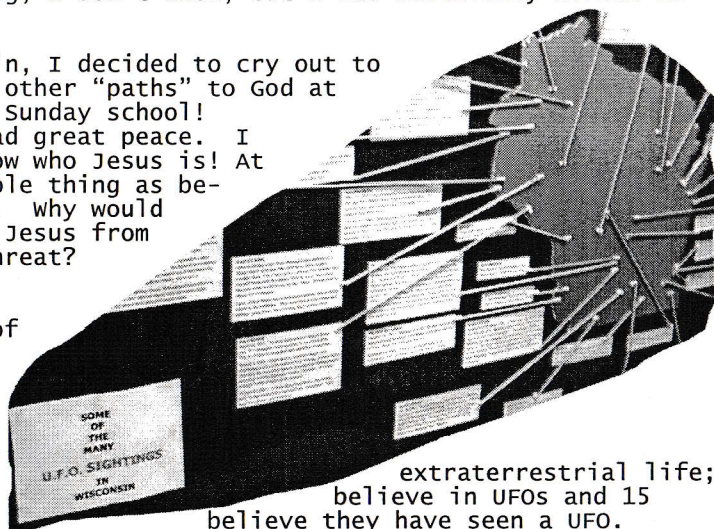

Hmmm.

There are hundreds if not thousands of people who see these "lights" along with UFOs and aliens. A recent study by the Gallup Pole states 72 percent

Wisconsin

- NEAR BARRON Boy carrying oil back to stranded car saw twenty little men walking along the road; summer 1919 (see Ch. 9)

Of Americans believe in 48 percent

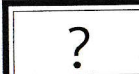

extraterrestrial life; believe in UFOs and 15 percent believe they have seen a UFO. (Gallup Polls done in 1991 and 1996). Other reports show that 2-3 percent believe they have been abducted by aliens! On top of that 12 of our astronauts have reported seeing UFOs while in flight. I believe its source is spiritual and demonic. It's interesting that one of the foremost UFO researchers, Dr. Jacques Vallee, believes this phenomena is not born from aliens coming from other galaxies to visit our world...he states, "I do not believe anymore that UFOs are simply the spacecraft of some race of extraterrestrial visitors. This notion is too simplistic to explain their appearance, the frequency of their manifestations throughout recorded history, and the structure of the information exchanged with them during contact." (Vallee, Confrontations, pg. 89) Many UFO researchers have found that there is a close tie between the Occult world and UFOs. (John Ankerberg, The Facts on UFO's and Other Supernatural Phenomona, pg.27)

The Bible says, "for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light." I believe that he will use anything he can to distract you from the true and living God. Jesus said, "I am the light of the world" and "the way, the truth, and the life." If you are involved in this type of activity there is a way out. If you are not a Christian, aliens should be the least of your concern right now. You need to be saved. If it's not aliens, it's going to be some other distraction. There is a satanic force working hard to persuade the world through many methods that Jesus Christ is not the only way to eternal life. The primary alien "message" is that which changes what the Bible says about Jesus. If you believe what the Bible teaches, that His death on the cross is payment for your sins, and know that you are not "good" and have no way to be right with God in your own strength, ask Him to save you. He wants you to be with Him forever.

Do you know where you are going when you die, and why?

-a word from the students and staff @ UW-Stout

	Shawn	Yes, because the Bible says so.
	Jeremy	Hopefully, heaven because I have been a good boy.
	Andy	Yes, the hood of someone's car because cars are gas guzzling machines and one will probably hit me.
	Sarah	Heaven or some sort of after life because it is what I was taught and how I was raised.
	Michelle	Yes, to heaven because I believe in God.
	Leslie	Yes, because it was supposed to happen that way.
	Andrea	I don't think we really go anywhere. I think once you're dead you're really dead. I took a lot of biology courses and read up on evolution. I believe in faith and there's a spirit that makes things alive and I think we have a soul which is feelings and love for each other. But I think once we're dead we decay and we don't go anywhere.
	Manny	Yes, to heaven by hearing God's Word and applying it to my life.
	Apaulo	Yes, because at 15, I accepted Christ as my personal Savior.

The truth is that 10 out of 10 people die. Let's face it, the odds are against ya. It is of extreme importance that you know where you are going after you die. Do you really want to just live for 80 years or fewer on this earth and then just rot in a grave? Come on, really, there's so much more than that available to you. The truth is that no one is just going to rot in the grave. Find a bible and turn to the book of Genesis. God created man in His image because he wanted to have a personal relationship with man. Adam and Eve had a perfect relationship with the Lord until they disobeyed God; they ate the fruit that they were told not to eat after being tempted by the serpent (Satan). They sinned and this sin separated them from their perfect God. God had a great plan to restore the relationship of sinful man to Himself, though. He sent His one and only Son Jesus Christ into this world to pay for our sins by dying a horrible death on a cross. The Bible says, "For God so loved the world that He gave His one and only Son and whoever believes in Him will not perish but will have eternal life. For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through Him. Whoever believes in Him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe stands condemned already because he has not believed in the name of God's one and only Son (John 3:16-18). What this means is that those who believe in Jesus and ask Him into their hearts will be forgiven, will get to have a personal relationship with Him, and will go to the place where God is->heaven (no more sin, no more tears). Those who harden their hearts against God and choose not to believe in Jesus will go to the place where Satan will be forever->hell (weeping and gnashing of teeth and eternal separation from God). God loves you perfectly, has great plans for you, and wants to spend eternity with you. Satan hates you and doesn't want you to know Jesus. You do have the choice. Choose this day.

Enjoy

BEEP...BEEP...beepBEEP...beepBEEPbeep... Isn't it wonderful opening your eyes to the chorus of alarms echoing through the dorm halls of UW-STOUT? Ah yes, this is home. Rise and shine!

"Lord...I thank you (yawn) for this day that you have given me. May you use me to accomplish your will and not my own. Amen."

Time to hit the Psalms, throw on some clothes and head to class (I'm sure some of you might think something is missing here. But hey, I'm a guy. Showers can always wait).

10:10 am

Calculus and Analytical Geometry II: is this why I came to STOUT? There has to be silver lining to this dark cloud. I guess I should just put a smile on my face and in my heart and tough it out. After all, if I sit in the front row with my florescent neon Jesus T-shirt and actually stay awake for the entire eighty-five minutes, no one in that room (including the teacher) will be able to deny the power of God right?

I'm having lunch with my dorm neighbor (You know...one of those culprits from the 9:30 am alarm clock symphony.) Let's call him "Fred" for now. Anyway, he's just opened up to me concerning his girlfriend and their relationship. (Why he's talking to me about this, I have no idea.) Well, being put on the spot I don't really know what to say. I begin to share using a verse God had given me in my morning devotion.

"Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchmen waketh but in vain." Psalms 127:1

I guess this verse is basically saying that worrying is a waist of our effort because GOD is building our individual lives. And not only that, GOD is keeping our relations with others as well. He is doing all this according to His will, not our efforts.

"Fred" smiled, thanked me, and headed to class. I really don't know if he was just "being polite" or if he was really comforted. In any case, I hope God is blessing him.

In retrospect, it's kinda scary (in a cool way) being used by God to share the Word. I guess living for Jesus sometimes involves more than just wearing a Jesus T-shirt. Yikes, is that a hint of conviction knockin' on the doors of my heart?

3:35 pm

Class is over for the day! I had a heck of a tough afternoon suffering through my Relaxation and Wellness classes. Hey, no pain no gain!

"Excerpts from the Walrus diary"

"Steiger International is dedicated to bringing the love of Jesus Christ to the darkest corners of secular society and to discipling the global youth culture."

Steiger's ministries have multiplied to include facilitating church planting in Siberia, Poland and Holland, as well as annual Jesus Camps (Bible camps) in Europe, evangelistic tours for a number of new ministry bands and a house for the destitute in Delhi, India, appropriately dubbed "The Delhi House."

Last year the Delhi House touched the lives of hundreds of young men on the streets of Delhi, many of them were admitted to hospitals, two hundred of them passed through the home. They all had a common history; loneliness, abuse, poverty, sickness, a deep hurt, loss of dignity, illiteracy, a meaningless life. Many came to the home more dead than alive. Most of them left with health, a will to live, and a relationship with Jesus. The experiences of the last few years of ministry at the Delhi House, show us again the existing need of the destitute of Delhi. Most of them are still young but crushed in spirit. The following are selected entries from one Tony "the walrus" who runs the Delhi House medical clinic in the heart of Old Delhi;

THE MISSION.

I came to Delhi two years ago to help Ton Snellart out at Delhi House, he had been picking wasted dying destitute people up from the streets of Delhi and taking care of them in his home that he set up for this purpose. When I came here and saw for myself what he was doing and what a difference it was making for those people, I knew I couldn't just leave. What is happening here is unforgettable and life changing, so I decided to stay. The house soon filled up and the three rooms that were meant to hold 16 people now house 25 to 30, we also got a lot of seriously ill people that needed constant attention so it became a full time job just being there, and getting people to the hospital, doing bandages and everything else that it involved.

It concerned us that we could not get to the streets as much as before because we knew that each day there are people that are dying on the streets and need help so we decided to rent a room in the destitute, and drug addicted infested area of Jumna Bazaar. We found the perfect place, a room, a Hindu temple on the banks of the Jumna river just a stones throw away from the new Jumna flyover bridge where we found most of the near dead patients.

I moved in there almost one year ago and am able to be there on daily basis, often I find people when I'm just going on a small errand to buy some milk or vegetables, people can always come to us too if they need a simple, dressing or are very sick.

We don't have a doctor, but I have become quite good at doing dressings and diagnosing tuberculosis. When someone is in need of hospital admittance, then it helps a lot if a foreigner is there to attend to them and make sure they get the treatment they need. Sometimes the guys we find are in such a poor condition that the hospitals will not admit them, they only take in people they think have some hope for survival so we take care of those ones in the rescue center as best we can, often despite the doctors assessment they do survive and even recover with good health.

So our main mission for the rescue center is to pick up the most desperate and needful people, you can usually find them by the amount of fly's that are surrounding them, wash them, care of any immediate needs, get them medical help and when in a stable condition they are moved to Delhi house for rehabilitation and counseling.

Tony ..(the walrus)

The Puritans immigrated to the New World fleeing religious persecution, only to manifest the same thing on this continent. Professing to know God and His will, yet disregarding scripture like Matt. 22:36-40; "Teacher, which is the great commandment in the law?" Jesus said to him, "you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, all your soul, and with all your mind." This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like it: 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' On this two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets."

Or Romans 12:18; "If it is possible, as much as depends on you, live peaceably with all men." Because of their lack of understanding of native peoples, they mistook the dancing and singing they saw and heard as ceremonies to the enemy.

Thus began hundreds of years of struggle and persecution for the native people. Broken promises and treaties darken the history of this period of time, and religious persecution is vividly etched in the minds of many natives. A native seldom, if ever, backed away or didn't follow through with what he said he would do. When a promise was made, it was like a blood covenant to a native, and the native would not break the trust of his word, because he knew that all that he could ever possess was his integrity. Time after time treaties were made, only to be broken. Time after time, natives would concede and give up more and more, only for the new treaty to be broken. Finally, beaten down by disease, starvation, and guns did the natives concede to give up more and live on "reservations" set-up and supplied by the government. Only to face more disease and starvation at the hands of the greedy government agents who supplied the people.

The whole time that these things were developing, the natives watched, and learned, that any god, who would do or direct a people in the manner of the whites, was not worthy of worship. They would not bow down to greed for things that cannot be possessed, or hate a man because he was a man, or kill the old and the children. They would have no part of the white man's god, or his savior.

Do you see the problem here? Hundreds of years of atrocities in the name of God still ring in our ears. The memories of a people beaten for their differences and pushed off of their homelands by a people that were supposed to "know" and have "direction" from God still beat in our hearts.

But God's grace and His long-suffering and the truth of His word have shown some of His native children His true heart. God is love; He is bigger than greed. He has more for His children than a few shiny trinkets of gold or land made of dirt. He has let His face shine on those who would hear and receive Jesus as presented in the Bible. He has caused His truth to overwhelm the memories of past destruction and false idols. He has shown His heart in the pages of the Bible and brought comfort for the homeless.

The truth of God's Word has broken through stony hearts and revealed His kindness and dispelled the lie that was presented. He is reaching out to His lost native children and asking them to remember who they are, but to give up their anger over things that cannot be changed. He's asking us to remember where we came from, but not to let it hinder where we are going. He's asking those who have found Him to share His truth with His native children and fill the space that has separated Native Americans from the white man. He is asking native Christians and pastors to stand...between two worlds.

on the BIG SCREEN

This movie was a real treat for science fiction fans. It is rated PG-13 for mild sexual content and depicting child abandonment. This caused some confusion because from the advertisement you might think it's a kid's movie. It's probably more appropriate for teens and adults. It is the story of an android boy David who is the first prototype of a new line of robots created with the ability to love. He is given to a family whose son was in a coma. At first David just roams around the house curious and kind of annoying to Monica, his surrogate mother. His love has to be turned on, and after it is turned on it is permanent.

The real son comes out of the coma and back into the house. The real son is quite a brat. After a couple near accidents, David is seen as a threat to their safety and to the life of the real son. The family has to get rid of David. They are told that they can't return him to the factory once his impulse to love has been turned on. He would be destroyed. The most disturbing part of the story is when Monica takes him to the forest, with the pretense of having a picnic, then abandons him there with his super toy, a robotic teddy bear.

David decides that if he could become a real boy then he could win the love of his surrogate mother. So he sets out on a journey to find someone who might be able to help him do this. He befriends Jude Law, a male prostitute android, who joins him in his quest. His journey takes him to the end of the earth and the brink of human extinction.

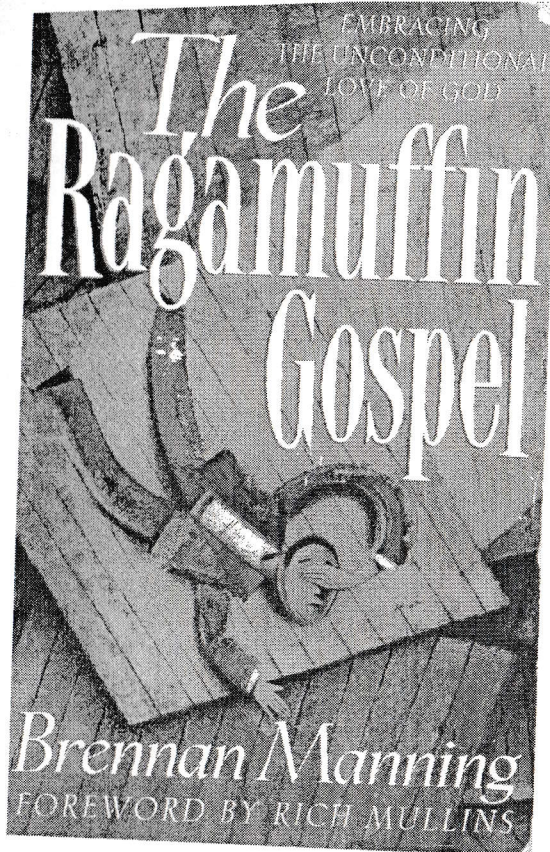

We are all, in essence, looking for love and acceptance. Just like David we all want to be loved by someone. For some it might be a sexual relationship, a close friend, or even a parent (like David). What everyone really needs is a relationship with the true and living God. The problem is that we all are desperately wicked. We have no right to call ourselves real children of God.

Jesus Christ is the real Son of God. When he came to earth, born of a virgin, he became human. When I was a child I thought it would be so cool if I could give one of my toys real life. The only way to do this would be to become a toy myself. This is what God has done for us. He became one of us to be the way for us to be real sons.

Being a real son of God comes though having a real relationship with the Father though the original Son of God, Jesus Christ. He loves us enough to do whatever it takes to reach us. Unlike David we don't have to travel to the edge of the world to find his love. The message just has to travel far enough to reach your heart.

The call asks, do you really accept the message that God is head over heels in love with you? I believe that this question is at the core of our ability to mature and grow spiritually. If in our hearts we really don't believe that God loves us as we are, if we are still tainted by the lie that we can do something to make God love us more, we are rejecting the message of the cross.

The Ragamuffin Gospel

I recently read a book called The Ragamuffin Gospel by Brennan Manning. It was recommended to me by a close friend, so I was looking forward to reading it and doing a book review on it. What I got out of it, though, was so much more than a book review.

The author begins the book by describing who it is for:

It is for the sorely burdened who are still shifting the heavy suitcase from one hand to the other.
It is for the inconsistent, unsteady disciples whose cheese is falling off their cracker.
It is for poor, weak, sinful men and women with hereditary faults and limited talents.
It is for the bent and bruised who feel that their lives are a grave disappointment to God.
It is for smart people who know they are stupid and honest disciples who admit they are scalawags.

So, obviously, this is not your ordinary "Christian Living" reading material. The entire book is about God's grace. But what makes this book so different is its focus on applying God's wonderful grace in our day-to-day lives. The book has an honesty to it that is extremely rare in books in the "Inspiration/Christian Living" category. It's not written with fancy words, lofty ideas, or stern directives, but with the simple, honest language of a man whose life has been gripped by God's unconditional love.

Manning begins the book by describing what grace is not and the dejected, downtrodden state that "do-it-yourself" spirituality produces. He talks about our distorted view of a conditional God where the emphasis is on what we do rather than on what God is doing or, rather, has done. He moves on chapter-by-chapter, comparing and contrasting mindsets or practices we have concerning grace versus the truth in God's Word.

This book is 11 chapters jam-packed full of great news! This book changed my life! Ever since I finished reading it, I can't stop remembering and reminding myself: GOD LOVES ME! Manning ends the book with a bold, yet tender statement: "It [grace] is not essentially a philosophy of love but a love affair; it is not keeping rules with clenched fists but receiving a gift with open hands." Read it! Then read it again and again! Read about how much GOD LOVES YOU!

...it [grace] is not essentially a philosophy of love but a love affair; it is not keeping rules with clenched fists but receiving a gift with open hands.-Pg. 214

Heart Check...

Are you wandering again my heart
Racing to men, money, food, self, the world

Heart check...heart check...heart check

Remember contentment is in Jesus alone
Though it might be cloudy presently

Let the Light shine in
There will be lies of Satan
Watch for temptations oftentimes subtle

Stand on God's word
Be steady, strong, immovable

Remember it's a battle out there
God has such great plans for you

Don't throw it away on the temporal
Remember to think on things pure, true, heavenly
Never leave God's peace for lust and idolatry
Cling to the ONE who will make you whole
Nothing else will fill you remember...remember?

Heart revive...heart revive...heart revive

Hundredfold is yours for fleeing the pleasures of this world
Press onward toward the goal...onward

Don't forget the calling God has for you personally
Stir up the gift of God that is in you

Take heed to the ministry which you have received-fulfill it
What else is there than to know, love, and serve God
Everything else will perish with this corrupted earth

Jesus is coming soon...coming soon
We'll no longer see through a glass darkly
He will make things so clear and real

All the trials and pain will be worth it
This is really only pre-life
Rest in His unfailing, faithful love

Trust He knows what is best for you at all times
Heart beating...heart beating...heart alive!

FOLLOW MY LEAD...

BETWEEN TWO WORLDS

Just over 500 years ago a New World was "discovered." Although already populated, the land was abounding in wildlife and fresh water streams ran cool and clear. Hardwood forests sprawled along the ocean beaches and fish teamed in the clear lakes that dotted the countryside. Into this God made utopia came the first men from across the water. They surveyed the land and saw that it was good to have, and said to one another, "The LORD has provided us with a great bounty, we shall live here." They set about making for themselves homes and...oh... did I mention that the land was already populated? Easy to forget when you look at all the cool stuff that was there that nobody had claimed, or was it really free for the taking?

This "New World" wasn't wide open, and godless heathens didn't people it. Over 10 million men, women and children called this land home, and understood that The Creator had given this place to them. These people had many languages, traditions and communities scattered throughout North America. The diversity of lifestyles ranged from nomadic hunter/gatherer communities to farmers with advanced irrigation systems and knowledgeable crop rotation. There were even democratic societies and vast trade routes established creating stabilized regions with healthy communities where all the people prospered and peace was established so the children would not know war.

The people I speak of were first called Indians by misguided and lost explorers, and then heathens and godless savages by misguided and unlearned missionaries and settlers. They were Navajo, Shawnee, Apache, Ojibwa, Arapaho, Winnebago, Cherokee, Lakota, Wampanoag, Cree, and many, many more. All strong and proud, all different, some now extinct and we will never know them again. I prefer to be referred to as a Native American and will refer to the first people on this continent as Natives for the completion of this article.

As mentioned earlier, the natives were not godless, but had very elaborate ceremonies and religious systems established that all centered around a Creator.

The idea was that one Creator established the earth and gave it to the first man as a gift to watch over and use as he saw fit, but that he was responsible for all that he did in and on the land. Because of the many people and different "nations," there are different aspects, ceremonies and traditions involved within the religion of the native people. But they all understood that everything they looked upon was created-even themselves. They understood that no man could own the land, the idea of owning the land to a native seemed as fruitless as trying to hold back the wind. Natives worshipped and showed respect to The Creator, as they understood Him.

Biblically speaking, native religious ceremonies were not Christ-centered, but many ceremonies did glorify The Creator and oral traditions record stories that closely parallel the history in Genesis. However, there was no knowledge of Jesus for the natives. I believe this is where the white man finds his place in this.

Please don't misunderstand me. Jesus is not only for white men, or black men, or any one race of people. But God put His Word in the hands of those who came across the water to share with any man they encountered. That is where this story takes a terrible twist. Prodded on by the idea that men not knowing God's word were heathen, the Puritans set about to convert the indigenous population with the philosophy that the native peoples would either convert or die. A great tragedy began to unfold that would prove to separate native and settler with suspicion, fear, hate and bloodshed that has stained the history of this country and the church forever.

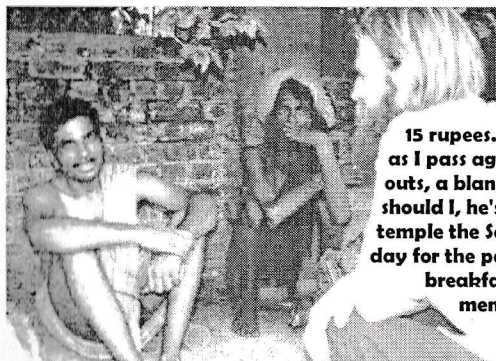

MORNING OF A MONGOL JUNE 8TH 2001

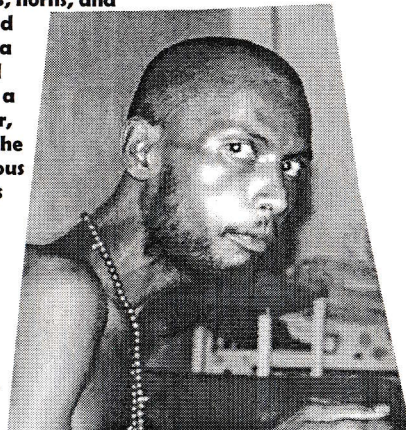

The river is hot and black like boiling tar, there is a small vegetable farm temporarily growing on the island across from where I sit. Soon the monsoon will wash it away. I can hear the motors, horns, and bells of hundreds of scooters, cars and bikes passing on the road above us, a baby crying, temple bells ringing and distorted Hindi film music playing from a variety of different players in the neighborhood. Pollution hangs in the air, the sky is an unchanging gray. The fat man comes with his bag of sweets, he doesn't say hello, his mind is elsewhere. He gravely walks among the various images and statues of gods scattered around the temple dropping goodies from his bag at each one, ringing the bell, kissing the threshold, mumbling some incoherent prayer. The duty is done, the last of the sweets are tossed into the river along with the polythene bag they came in, he waddles off to his scooter to join the endless flow of traffic going somewhere. I live in a city, like most people....unlike most people, in a Hindu temple and in my back room 3 or 4 sick guys lie dying. Young people that I found outside in my neighborhood. They trust me completely, that I will make them better, I've become their savior. They call me doctor and god. I don't make them any promises, how could I, an uneducated builder from Hamilton, New Zealand! previously my most serious thought was how to get enough money together so I could spend the next winter snowboarding. If they only knew. I don't know the reason I'm still here after two years when I planned to stay just 6 months. Maybe that there aren't any worthy excuses to leave. I know the guys are here and many more waiting for salvation down the street. We share an existence, helping each other to breathe (sometimes literally with a respirator in a hospital emergency room). I try to help them and they give me a reason to live..... we keep a balance.

Today I got up late it is 7am and the noise of the day has risen to levels that make a silent conversation with my creator impossible (the ideal time is between 4 and 5 the only hours of near silence, (I religiously manage to miss it). when I do get to it, conversation is not really what happens, it is more like me with my face on the ground, trying to express something of myself, to someone who knows everything about what I am unable to find words for. Frustrated I sit and simply allow myself to be something that god seems to love intensely, a moment may arrive or may not. At 7:30 I walk down to the milk seller carrying the one liter can. I pass Triloki in his usual place half asleep or high, folding his blanket that he was given when he left Delhi house, a year has passed since the doctors told us he had two months to live. He feels okay but living as he does and infected with HIV, how long before he's back with something new. The milkman fills my tin and I give him 15 rupees. "look for a job today" I say to Triloki as I pass again. He just smiles, free food hand-outs, a blanket, a pace to crawl under,... why should I, he's probably thinking. Back to the temple the Sadhu is busy cleaning as he has each day for the past 15 years. I rouse the guys to start breakfast and brew myself a coffee. a moment to relax, read, plan and wait for the chaos to start.

AROUND THE WORLD

While three GFA (Gospel for Asia) missionaries were sharing the Gospel in a remote highland village, they were suddenly surrounded by an anti-Christian gang and forced at gunpoint to the edge of a cliff. Their abductors planned to shoot them and then throw their bodies into the ravine below. But the Lord spared their lives when a crowd of nearly 200 villagers arrived and demanded that the three men be released.

ASIA

With tears streaming down her wrinkled face, the 100-year-old woman watched, heartbroken, as flames consumed the funeral pyre holding the body of the last and dearest of her friends.

A few months later, as the only one left of her generation, she saw the first team of native missionaries reach her remote village.

That night she eagerly sat among the other villagers to watch a film on the life of Jesus and to listen with astonishment to a simple Gospel message. For the very first time she and the other villagers heard that through Jesus their sins could be forgiven.

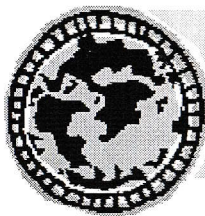

Overwhelmed with the wonderful news about the Savior and His love for her, the old woman joyfully received Jesus. But through her tears of joy, she was gripped with one question: "Why had no one come sooner with this message? If only my friends and family could have heard the Gospel at least once before they died, they might not have been lost forever."

...a sun worshipper sits on the beach, staring into the rising sun until he eventually goes blind...

Nepal

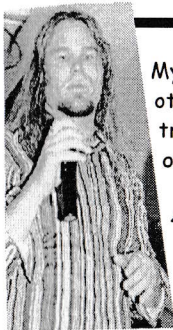

The world's only Hindu nation was rocked by the assassination of their king and members of the royal family. He was believed to be a reincarnation of the god Vishnu. Though recent laws have allowed freedom of religion and worship, it is still officially illegal to evangelize.

The Bhutanese government recently closed down all churches in the capital city of Timphu and deported two pastors from the country.

My mind keeps returning to "Fred" and the questions he is facing. (Well...that is, in between every other cute girl that has walked by. That's right, even being a Jesus Freak doesn't cancel out the distractions being dished out by the flesh). I guess we both need to rest in Jesus. Who else could fill our personal needs for a relationship and satisfy our spiritual intimacy?

4:03 pm

Returning to the dorms, I knock on "Fred's" door. He does not answer. In leaving, I write a note on his message board inviting him to our 7:00 pm Bible study.

6:58 pm

No sign of "Fred." (Maybe a shower before lunch would have been a good idea). Should I have smiled more? Did I say the right verse?

"Except the Lord build...except the Lord keep..."

I guess I need to heed my own advice. After all, God is in control of building him, not me. God is in control of the keeping all of us, not me. I simply need to do what God calls me to do. I will rest in Him.

7:24 pm

A verse from the teacher just caught my attention:

"But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts..." 1 Peter 3:15

He's telling us that the Greek word for "sanctify" really means "set apart" in the language of today. Hmm, I wonder how many times I've read the word "sanctify" and didn't really know what it meant?

11:15 pm

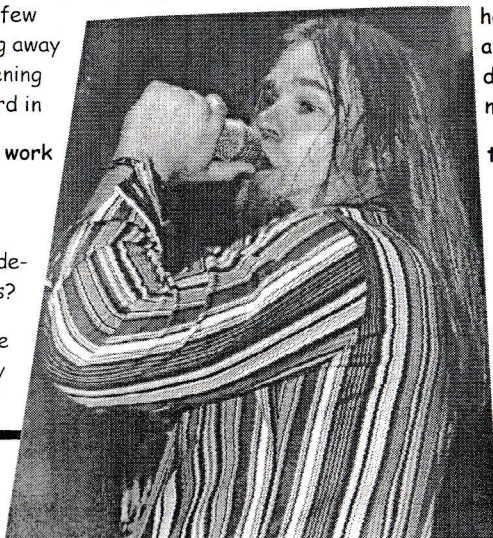

The Bible study was great! I presumed that my "new found understanding" of the word sanctify would make all my troubles go away, but the last few sires. My flesh keeps pounding away. It is definitely time for an evening some purgin' by having His Word in

Dear Neea-

How are ya, girl? Last week you told me someone told you that as a Christian, you did not have enough faith and that was the reason why you were not healed from your physical ailment. I know how much this upset you, and I want to personally apologize for the frustration and confusion this caused you.

I just wanted to let you know some things that the bible says about faith and healing. The Bible gives a definition of faith in Hebrews 11:1 "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. "Our faith is that Jesus is the Son of God and that he died and rose again for our sins. Romans 10:17 tells us, "So then faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Our faith in Jesus Christ grows as we begin to read God's word and come to know him more. For example, I cannot see Jesus right now, but the Bible says that if I believe in my heart that he died and rose again for my sins I am promised eternal life in heaven (John 3:16, Romans 10:9).

Through faith Jesus also performed many miracles of healing (check out the 4 gospels, and it is also seen in the book of Acts with the apostles (Acts 3:6, 5:16, 9:40, 19:11-12). God still continues to heal people today, too. James 5:14 also instructs us, "Is there any sick among you? Let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord."

There are some things that God will allow, though. In John chapter 9, Jesus and his disciples passed a man who had been born blind since birth. When the disciples asked Jesus if this man had been born blind as a result of sin, Jesus answered, "Neither this man nor his parents sinned, but that the works of God should be revealed in him" (John 9:3). Jesus also said in his Sermon On The Mount in Matthew 5:45, "...for he makes his sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the just and on the unjust."

There were also men in the bible who were full of faith that got sick. The apostle Paul wrote to the Galatians in Galatians 4:13, "You know that because of my physical infirmity I preached the gospel to you at the first." Paul was also given a "thorn in his flesh" (2 Corinthians 12:7) and prayed three times that it would be removed. The Lord answered him, "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness" (2 Corinthians 12:9). Timothy was called Paul's "son in the faith"

(1 Timothy 1:2) yet in 1 Timothy 5:23 Paul tells Timothy "No longer drink only water, but use a little wine for your stomach's sake and your frequent infirmities." So, we see that these people who were great servants of Jesus also suffered physically.

So, no matter what is happening here Jesus brings us a "peace that surpasses our understanding" (Philippians 4:7), and we are promised eternal life in heaven. "For we know that if our earthly house, this tent, is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens" (2 Corinthians 5:6).

The best thing you can do, Neea, is read the Bible for yourself and have your own personal relationship with God no matter what other people are saying. It's the Holy Spirit that teaches us: "But the Helper, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in My name, He will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all things that I said to you" (John 14:26).

I hope to hear from you soon! I'm praying for ya!

Trusting Jesus,

Rayne

SAY WHAT?

A Conversation with Rich Mullins

The concepts of biblical parables come to life in everyday conversations. The following dialogue is often recounted in concert by Rich Mullins, who befriended a man at a steak house while hiking along the Appalachian trail. As it was getting dark, the man, who we'll call John, offered Rich a ride back to his campsite. As the truck pulled out of town, Rich's new friend spoke up.

John: I probably ought to tell you that I'm gay.

Rich: I probably ought to tell you that I'm a Christian.

John: Well, do you want to get out of the truck?

Rich: No. It's still getting dark, and my camp is still miles up the road.

John: But I thought Christians hated gays.

Rich: That's really weird. My understanding of what Christ told us was that Christians were to love. I didn't know there were a lot of parameters set on that.

John: I thought God hated gays.

Rich: That's funny, because I thought God is love, and He has no choice but to love because that is what He is.

John: Do you believe AIDS is God's punishment on gays?

Rich: Well possibly, in the same sense that presidents are God's punishment on voters. I mean there are consequences. We make choices, and there are natural consequences for those choices.

John: Will I go to hell for being gay?

Rich: [I was ready to go, "Well, yes, of course, you'll go to hell for being gay." But that was one of those moments when the Good News really impressed me. What I heard myself say was...] No, of course you won't go to hell for being gay anymore than I would go to hell for being dishonest. The only reason anybody ever went to hell was because they rejected the grace that God so longed to give them.

John: I grew up in church, and I've never heard anybody ever say that God loved me.

Rich: I think that of all the diseases in the world, the disease that all humankind suffers from, the disease that is most devastating to us is not AIDS, it's not glut-tony, it's not cancer, it's not any of those things. It is the disease that comes about because we live in ignorance of the wealth of love that God has for us. What a great message we in the church have. It's relevant to people with AIDS and people without AIDS. It's relevant to homosexuals and to homophobes. It's relevant to Republicans and Democrats, to abortionists and anti-abortionists. It's relevant across the board.

THE GREAT NEWS

"This is REAL LOVE. It was not that we loved God, BUT THAT HE LOVED US and Sent His Son as a sacrifice to take away our sins."
1 John 4:10

"For GOD so LOVED the WORLD that He gave His only Son, SO THAT EVERYONE WHO BELIEVES IN HIM WILL NOT DIE ETERNALLY BUT HAVE ETERNAL LIFE IN HEAVEN" John 3:16

"For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn it but to save it." John 3:17

"Jesus answered them, 'Healthy people don't need a doctor-sick people do. I HAVE COME TO CALL ALL SINNERS TO TURN FROM THEIR SINS, not to spend time with those who think they are already good enough."" Luke 5:30

"Therefore since WE HAVE BEEN MADE RIGHT IN GOD'S SIGHT BY FAITH IN JESUS TO SAVE US, we have peace with God."" Romans 5:1

"I write this to you who believe in the Son of God; SO THAT YOU MAY KNOW THAT YOU HAVE ETERNAL LIFE" 1 John 5:13

WHAT DO YOU BELIEVE?

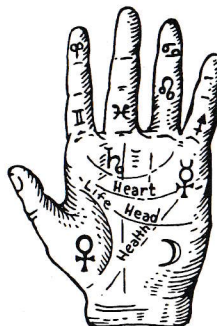

The Wisdom of man?

FACT: Now after years of teaching the theory of evolution as reality, modern scientists have abandoned it for what they call the "intelligent design theory." Which one is right?

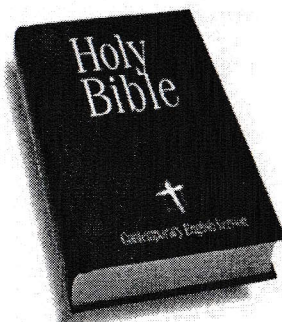

Chance? (roll the dice)

FACT: Chance is contingent on the influences of a particular situation and thus each situation differs one to the next. Just as in the lottery, chances of loss outweigh those to win.

Enchantment and "Religion?"

FACT: With the exception of Biblical Christianity, all religions are a human attempt to reach god or some sort of spiritual plateau. Christianity is God reaching humankind.

Biblical Christianity

FACT: The belief in the God of the Bible has stood the test of time. Millions of lives have been changed to prove His work. Besides, what was it that happened 2001 years ago that was so great that they decided to gauge time by it?
